COMFORT in RIDING.

MESSRS. THOMAS & SONS wish to draw the attention of Sportsmen, and especially those who are constantly in the saddle, to the many advantages of their

LACED KNEE'D RIDING BREECHES.

Buttons constantly get broken and are driven into the shin, and in cases where the breeches are too tight or too loose, they admit of no adjustment. The use of laces obviously does away with these irritating accidents, and, in addition, gives an even elastic pressure unobtainable in any other way.

None but those who have been in the saddle for many hours, at a stretch can conceive the relief this simple expedient alone affords. But if any further proof were necessary, the fact that this method of fastening at the knees has proved of inestimable value in South Africa during the late war, and has been universally copied by other tailors, should be sufficient. It should be borne in mind, however, that the majority of these imitations are unsatisfactory, and are calculated to prejudice the merits of the properly made garment, which can only be obtained of us.

Ordering. --We shall be pleased to send patterns and instructions for self-measurement, free of charge, by post, anywhere.

Colonial Customers and gentlemen residing out of town need not hesitate to leave to us the selection of the cloth. Our experience teaches us that, as a rule, it is better to do so as far as possible, merely stating the requirements and whether the breeches are for incessant hard wear or only for occasional wear. To new customers we shall be glad to submit samples of cloth and prices, with particulars of the measurements we require, which can be easily taken by anyone.

LOTENI, P.O.A.,

via Nottingham, NATAL,

9th Nov., 1903.

The Blickensderfer Typewriter Co.,
Newcastle-on-Tyne.

Dear Sirs,

I am writing this on a No. 5 Blick, which, four years ago I left in Krugersdorp, when I was put over the border by the Boers. The machine was soon after commandeered for official use and taken to the head laager before Ladysmith, where it was used in producing many documents that have since become historic. Later it accompanied the Staff of President Kruger, until captured by the British, who used it. At last it wandered back to its old district, where one of the first users of it recognised it by its number--19546, and was the means of my recovering it two months ago. To my astonishment it was so little the worse that in half an hour I was using it, and as you can see by this specimen, it has many years' life in it yet. I am writing this to ease my conscience, because when I first saw a BLICK I thought and said it was a feeble toy. For that hasty pre-judgment I now make amends, for a machine that can survive such a rough-and-tumble experience among heavy-handed Boers, and its many bumpy journeys over the veld, and then turn up fit for duty after nearly four years, deserves the profoundest respect and admiration. There is only one thing that has astonished me more than the marvellous simplicity and sturdiness of the BLICK, that is, that anybody should buy a more expensive machine.

Yours truly,

(Signed) DOUGLAS BLACKBURN.

THE POCKET DARK ROOM

A beautifully finished device which is small enough to be carried in the pocket, with which anyone can develop films or plates in daylight or any light anywhere.

No need of any experience of developing. No more groping about in the dark. No ruby lamp, developing dishes, or glass measures. The Pocket Dark Room takes one ounce only of developer, which is prepared by the simple addition of water to our special developing powders. A rubber bulb is supplied with the apparatus for the purpose of applying the developer. Every exposure is developed separately under observation and the fullest possible control.

Write for particulars of this great photographic novelty to the Sole Manufacturers,
